

What it would have looked like

If I could change my expo display I would have made it more appealing. Such as adding more color, or underline the title with black tape, and that would make the title stick out and it would be more noticeable. I would also add text to the poster to explain what the pictures meant and were. I would have time to do this because one of my strengths is that I organize my time well. I would have found more materials to use because one of my threats was that I had a lack of materials when I was constructing my poster. I would have been more prepared explaining Global Warming and other factors to the younger children. I would have had a hands on activity to keep the younger kids interested. I would have had a copy of my speech (what I usually said to someone who came to my display) on the display so that if I was in the middle of explaining my project to one person and another person came along and was interested they could read my speech and get the exact information that I was giving to the other person without interrupting. I would have explained the basics of my project, (for instance what Global Warming was). I would have something to hold my poster or make a way to have it stay up by itself. And next time I plan to do a similar topic and when I'm writing what I plan to say I will try to be more persuasive because I feel that I can and should make a difference and help educate the public as best I can.
